

The Importance of a Disaster Preparedness Plan

By being prepared with a well-thought-out disaster plan for different types of disasters, you can potentially save your pet's life in case of emergency. Some general tips for planning:

Before the Disaster

- Make sure your pet wears at least two forms of current identification. You may want to consider a microchip implant, combined with tags on a collar. Also, keep the information current if you have registered with any lost and found databases.
- Be sure to place permanent, waterproof "Pets Inside" stickers on your front and back windows to alert emergency workers that pets are in your home. If possible, list the number and types of animals in your household. Should you be unable to go home to retrieve your pets during a disaster, this sticker could help rescue workers find your pets in your home.
- Find a veterinarian in your area.
- Start a buddy system with a neighbor. Ask him/her to check on your pet during a disaster if you are not home. Agree to do the same for your neighbor. Exchange information on veterinarians.
- Check to make sure your pet's vaccinations are up to date. Keep an extra copy of your pet's health information in your pet disaster/emergency kit.
- Assemble a disaster kit. See recommended pet first aid kit list and pet emergency survival kit.

During the Disaster

- Animals brought to a pet shelter are required to have proper identification collar and rabies tag, proper identification on all belongings, a carrier or cage, a leash, an ample supply of food, water and food bowls, any necessary medications, specific care instructions and newspapers or trash bags for clean-up.
- Bring pets indoors well in advance of a storm. Reassure them and remain calm.
- Pet shelters will be filled on first come, first served basis. Call ahead and determine availability.

After The Disaster

- Walk pets on a leash until they become re-oriented to their home. Often familiar scents and landmarks may be altered and pets could easily be confused and become lost. Also, downed power lines, reptiles brought in with high water, and debris can all pose a threat for animals after a disaster.
- If pets cannot be found after a disaster, contact the local animal control office to find out where lost animals can be recovered. Bring along a picture of your pet if possible.
- After a disaster animals can become aggressive or defensive—monitor their behavior.

Don't forget your pet when preparing a family disaster plan.
